1. Receipt is acknowledged of the amendment filed on 4/14/2004.

2. This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Hartel in view of JP Hitachi.

Hartel shows in Figure 2 a damper comprising a support a plate means 17, a mass separated by elastic elements 15,16 and elastic elements 19, 20 separating the plate 17 from the support. The claimed invention differs from Hartel only in that it is an active, instead of passive, damper. Hitachi shows an active damper using masses and elastic elements. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to have made the system of Hartel into an active damper in view of the teaching of Hitachi as a natural evolution of the art and/or so as to actively control the vibrations of the systems.

Re- claims 2 and 3, using a cancellation signal is old and well known and the particular frequencies utilized would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art dependent on the associated environment and intended use.

5. Applicant's arguments filed 4/14/2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicants' assertion that the vibration damping mount of Hartel is non-analogous is curious. Applicants' claimed invention is also a vibration damping mount. Both Hartel and Applicants' invention are in the same field of invention and in the same art. Thus, it is readily apparent that Hartel is analogous art. As to a reason for upgrading a passive system to an active system, perhaps applicants are unaware of the invention of computer control systems and the entire body of art in the automotive industry that has been upgrading passive systems to actively controlled systems for over 30 years. Applicants are advised to review technical journals in the automotive industry as well as other areas where formerly passive systems have been upgraded to being actively controlled.

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.

7. Any inquiry concerning this communication should be directed to Matthew C. Graham at telephone number 703-308-2570.
